THE WIDOW. A widow is a dangerous thing, With soft, black, shining curls, And looketh more bewitching Than a host of romping girls 5

Soon to become a bride. Her dress, though made of sables Gives roundness to her form-A touch of something thoughtful. A witching, winning charm;

Her laugh is so delicious-

And when she sits by you,

So knowing, clear, beside,

You'd never dream her thinking

With quiet and easy grace-A tear may fall unbidden, Or a smile light up her face: Her voice is soft-melodious-And lute-like in its tone;

She sometimes sighs. "'tis dreadful. To pass through life alone." And then she'll tell you, you remind he'f Of the lov'd one dead and gone . Your step, your form, your features ; Thus the widow will run on.

Oh! listen, yet be careful, For well she plays her part-Her lips distill the nectar That doth enslave her heart, Be guarded, or she'll win you, With sighs, and smiles, and tears; I' faith she'll wear the breeches too,

And hox your silly ears! Newspaper Support.—The editor of an ex-change paper understands his business. Heaf

" Much depends upon the supporters of a newspaper, whether it is conducted with spirit and interest. If they are niggardly or negligent in their payments, the pride and ambition of the editor is broken down; he works at a profitless and unthankful task; his paper looses its with and interest, and dies. But on the contrary, if his subscribers are the right street, is offered for sale, or to rent till sort; if they are punctual, liberal-hearted fellows, always in advance on the subscription pleasantly situated, good sized lot and a well in the list, taking an interest in increasing the number of his subscribers, and now and then spea-king a word for his newspaper, cheering him and convenient lot, a little North of Market street, on his course by smiles of approbation; with such subscribers as these; he must be a dolt indeed who could not get up an interesting sheet. With such patrons as these, we would forswear comfort, ease, leisure, everything that could possibly step between us and the gratification of every landable desire on their part. We would know no other pleasure than their satisfaction. How much can the supporters of a newspaper do to make it interesting and respectable! Indeed, without concurring efforts on their part, the publisher of a newspaper will not, cannot, bestow the attention which is necessary to make it what it should be."

GENERAL WASHINGTON. One Reuben Rouzy, of Virginia, ewed the General about one thousand pounds. While he was President, one of his agents brought an action for the money; judgment was obtained and execution issued against the body of the defendant, who was taken to fail. He had considerable landed estate, but this kind of property cannot be sold in Virginia; unless at the discretion of the person: He had a large family, and for the sake of his children, preferred lying in jail to selling his land. A friend hinted to him, that probably General Washington did not know anything Warrants, Ca Sas of the proceeding, and that it might be well to send him a petition, with a statement of the circumstances. He did so-and the very next post from Philadelphia, after the arrival of his petition in that city, brought him an order for his immediate release, together with a full discharge, and a severe reprimand to the awork in the printing line would do well to give us Poor Rouzy was consequently restored to his gent, for having acted in such a manner .family, who never laid down their heads at rates for cash. Callat the JOURNAL OFFICE night without first presenting prayers to heaven for "their beloved Washington." Providefice smiled upon the labors of the grateful family, and, in a few years, Rouzy enjoyed the exquisite pleasure of being able to pay the money, with the interest, to this truly great man. Washington reminded him that the debt was discharged. Rouzy replied, the debt of his family to the father of their country, and the preserver of their parent, could never be discharged; and the General, to avoid the pleasing importunity of the grateful Vir-
